

Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 13 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Mostly rain, especially in the north, with some dry patches.

Today:

Today will start with rain for many, especially in the west and north where it is likely heavy. Turning drier through the day with only the odd patch of light rain by mid-afternoon. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:

Early evening will see rain, often heavy, come from the northwest before spreading to the rest of the country erratically overnight. Expect the worst of the rain over hilly areas. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Thursday:

The rain will fragment and clear during the day. Turning colder with a chance of snow in the northeast before it eventually turns drier towards evening. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:

Mostly dry and cloudy on Friday. A band of rain, often heavy, arriving from the west late Friday night or early Saturday, clearing Saturday afternoon. Sunday dry and mostly cloudy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.